Kettle Valley Trail, Biking Stage 1: Castlegar to Beaverdell

The first stage begins in the historic village of Castlegar, located at the confluence of the Columbia and Kootenay Rivers. We'll visit turn-of-the-century towns of Grand Forks, Greenwood, Rock Creek and some wilderness backcountry in between. One of the highlights will be the 'unending' cycle along Arrow & Christina Lakes with a view only the railbed enjoys. Overnight stations will be 'far off the beaten path', where you'll enjoy the serenity of this timeless landscape. Cyclists who enjoy single-track riding will be thrilled with the additional trails located at or near our overnight locations.

This event will support TheBigWild.org to help raise awareness and funding for Canada's wild places.

Itinerary

DAY 1:

For those traveling from Vancouver, we transfer by van to Castlegar, stopping in Beaverdell for lunch en-route (and to pick up those who prefer to leave their cars there). We arrive to Castlegar late afternoon which may allow time for those who want to explore local bike trails.

DAY 2:

Castlegar to Tunnel Station 40 km / 25 miles

Today, we start on the railbed with incredible views of Lower Arrow Lake. The railbed 'hugs the cliffside' as it climbs to Bulldog Tunnel (almost 1 km long). We'll camp at Tunnel Station, overlooking Dog Creek Valley. We'll have a 'backcountry cookout' and relax under the stars.

DAY 3:

Tunnel Station to Christina Lake 42 km / 26 miles + options

We cycle up a 2% grade to the summit at Farron and then enjoy a long descent to Christina Lake, where boating and swimming are possible. There are also wonderful trails to ride (or hike) in the area, so for those who wish, we'll explore Texas Creek Provincial Park.
