Kettle Valley Trail, Biking Stage 3: Coalmont to Hope

For a short get-a-way from the city, this section of the trail makes for an ideal sampler (or finisher if you have done the other stages)! Our ride starts in Coalmont, a mining town with restored turn of the century buildings; we follow the verdant Tulameen River Valley, stopping at idyllic Otter Lake before reaching the Coley Creek Ranch of Burt Sharkey. Here, we'll enjoy an evening 'out of the wild west' as guest of this banjo playing cowboy. On the next evening, we'll overnight on Coquihalla Lakes where home-made pie never tasted as good. Sunday, we'll ride downhill through perhaps the most spectacular section of all, the Coquihalla canyon through to Hope.

This event will support TheBigWild.org to help raise awareness and funding for Canada's wild places.

Itinerary

DAY 1:

For those that have booked transportation from Vancouver, we transfer by van to Coalmont, stopping in Hope (to pick up those who prefer to leave their cars there). After a welcome dinner, we'll enjoy a restful night on Granite River.

DAY 2:

Coalmont to Coley Creek 33 km / 21 miles + options
Our ride start will be through the lush Tulameen Valley past Otter Lake en route to Coley Creek to a backcountry ranch, where we'll be hosted by fiddle, guitar and banjo playing Burt Sharkey. Burt may have his buggy and horses available to take you for a ride you'll never forget and afterwards, our guides will prepare a backcountry cook-out.

DAY 4: Coquihalla Lakes to Hope 58 km / 36 miles
It's pretty much all downhill to the Ride finish. We take a mid-day hike up to Ladner Creek trestle, to a lunch site you won't soon forget. Afterwards, you'll visit Bridalveil Falls and then at Othello Station, one of the most famous sites of the entire KVR, the Quintette tunnels. The horseshoe path carved by the Coquihalla River (90 m deep) required engineering a route that must be seen. From here, the lush trail descends to a Ride Finish celebration at the Hope
